DETAILED ACTION

Claim Objections

Claims 9 and 10 are objected to under 37 CFR 1.75(c) as being in improper form because a multiple dependent claim may not depend from another multiple dependent claim. See MPEP § 608.01(n). Accordingly, the claims 9 and 10 have not been further treated on the merits.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459 (1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.
3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.
4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.

Claims 1, 2, 5, and 8 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being obvious over Matsumoto et al.

The applied reference has a common assignee with the instant application. Based upon the earlier effective U.S. filing date of the reference, it constitutes prior art only under 35 U.S.C.

Art Unit: 3744

102(e). This rejection under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) might be overcome by: (1) a showing under 37 CFR 1.132 that any invention disclosed but not claimed in the reference was derived from the inventor of this application and is thus not an invention "by another"; (2) a showing of a date of invention for the claimed subject matter of the application which corresponds to subject matter disclosed but not claimed in the reference, prior to the effective U.S. filing date of the reference under 37 CFR 1.131; or (3) an oath or declaration under 37 CFR 1.130 stating that the application and reference are currently owned by the same party and that the inventor named in the application is the prior inventor under 35 U.S.C. 104, together with a terminal disclaimer in accordance with 37 CFR 1.321(c). This rejection might also be overcome by showing that the reference is disqualified under 35 U.S.C. 103(c) as prior art in a rejection under 35 U.S.C.

103(a). See MPEP § 706.02(l)(1) and § 706.02(l)(2).

As per claims 1 and 5, Matsumoto et al. teaches a multistage compression system wherein reversal of the discharge pressures of a first and second compression element is determined based on the intermediate discharge pressure of the first compression element (see Figures 5 and 6, whereby reversal occurs at the point where the case inner pressure line passes the high pressure line). Matsumoto et al. does not specifically teach a sensor for sensing the intermediate discharge pressure (it instead uses ambient temperature as a proxy for intermediate pressure). However, since the high pressure line is substantially constant, it is a simple and obvious step, that would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill at the time of the invention, to determine reversal by measuring the case inner pressure (relative to the constant high pressure value) for the purpose of preventing such pressure reversal (see column 12, lines 13-50).

Art Unit: 3744

As per claim 2, the predetermined value is the high pressure value as shown in Figures 5 and 6.

As per claim 8, Matsumoto et al. teaches reducing the expansion valve 159 to prevent reversal (see column 12, lines 24-65).

Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 3, 4, 6, and 7 are allowed.
